DBQ 15: NEW IMPERIALISM: CAUSES

Historical Context

Between 1870 and 1920, the rate of European imperialism increased. This was due to economic, political, and social forces. The Industrial Revolution stirred the ambitions of European nations. The advances in technology allowed these nations to spread their control over the less-developed areas of the world. Historians have studied this empire-building frenzy. They have offered a variety of perspectives on its causes.

- Directions: The following question is based on the accompanying documents in Part A. As you analyze the documents, take into account both the source of each document and the author's point of view. Be sure to do each of the following steps:
 - 1. Carefully read the document-based question. Consider what you already know about this topic. How would you answer the question if you had no documents to examine?
 - 2. Read each document carefully, underlining key phrases and words that address the document-based question. You may also wish to use the margin to make brief notes. Answer the questions that follow each document before moving on to the next document.
 - 3. Based on your own knowledge and on the information found in the documents, formulate a thesis that directly answers the document-based question.
 - 4. Organize supportive and relevant information into a brief outline.
 - 5. Write a well-organized essay proving your thesis. You should present your essay logically. Include information both from the documents and from your own knowledge beyond the documents.

int	In this excerpt, author Parker T. Moon pointed out which groups were most erested in imperialism.
	The makers of cotton and iron goods have been very much interested in imperialism. This group of import interests has been greatly strengthened by the demand of giant industries for colonial raw materials Shipowners demand coaling stations for their vessels and naval bases for protection. To these interests may be added the makers of armaments and of uniforms. The producers of telegraph and railway material and other supplies used by the government in its colony may also be included Finally, the most powerful business groups are the bankers. Banks make loans to colonies and backward countries for building railways and steamship lines

Cecil Rhodes was a successful British imperialist in Africa. This excerpt is adapted from his position on imperialism. I contend that we [Britons] are the finest race in the world, and the more of the world we inhabit, the better it is for the human race It is our duty to seize every opportunity of acquiring more territory and we should keep this one idea steadily before our eyes that more territory simply means more of the Anglo-Saxon race, more of the best, the most human, most honourable race the world possesses.
